A Mercenary Boy. "When I was a boy," said the man who insisted that men were more mer-tenary than women, "I had a little friend named Willie. Willie appeared one day with a fine apple.
"Till give you this apple,' he said to a little girl, 'for twenty kisses.' "The little girl was amazed. That was not at all like Willie. Neverthe-eas she consented. "Shut your eyes," said Willie. "Sit down here and shut your eyes. And, mind you, if you open them the bargain is off. "The little girl obeyed, and slowly, very slowly, the kisses began to fall upon her lips. One, two, three, four (a long pause), five, six (another long pause), seven (pause), eight, nine, ten (intolerable pause). 'Oh, Willie, hurry!'

"'I'm not Willie." "The little girl opened her eyes in astonishment and drew back her pretty mouth from the advancing lips of a strange boy, a very common, shabby sort of boy, whom she had never seen before.

"'Why, where's Willie?' she cried "'He's down the street,' was the re ply, 'sellin' yer kisses for two apples aplece. Better shut yer eyes again. The next three boys is terrible ugly." -St. Louis Republic.

On the Verge. He considered it a parental duty to see that his daughter kept only the very best marriageable company. "Mary," said her father, "you have been going with that Mitchell fellow for more than a year now. This court-ship must come to a termination." "Oh, pa, how can you talk so? He is, oh, so sweet and nice!"

"Ah!" And, the fond father arched his eyebrows. "Sweet and nice, eh? Has he proposed?"

"Well, pa, not exactly." And the girl hung her head and fingered the drapery of her dress. "He hasn't exactly proposed; but, then, last evening, when we were out walking, we passed by a nice little house, and he said, That's the kind of cottage I am going to live in some day,' and I said 'Yes,' and then he glanced at me and squeezed my hand. Then, just as we got by. I glanced back at the cottage, and-and I squeezed his hand, pa." "Oh, ah, I see! Well, we'll try him another week or two." - London Tit-

His Feelings Were Hurt. It is strange how unreasonable some eople are in business-how unreasonable and how inconsiderate of the feelings of others. As an example, there is the case of a fidelity company in New York which suddenly and arbitrarily canceled the bond it had issued for a man attached in a fiduciary capacity to an important concern. It was the most natural thing in the world for the man to display some feeling and to demand to know the reason for such action. And the inconsiderate head of the bonding company wrote him to this effect:

"Because you were convicted of for gery under another name in the year - and served a term in the state prison at The recipient of the note felt so nurt that he couldn't reply. He still is silent.—New York Globe.

A Singer's Avarice.

We hear a great deal about the enormous salaries paid to famous prima donnas nowadays, and we also hear s great deal about their charity and good nature. In the reign of Queen Anne one of the most celebrated singers was Mrs. Tofts, who had a veritable craze more money this way. When I works PANY will be held at the office of said company, No 128 south Fairfax street, Alexandria, Virginia, on MONDAY, June 8, 1908, at 3 o'clock p. m. J. WHIT BERRON,

As had drawn both the beasts and their Orpheus along.
But such is thy avarice and such is thy pride

That the beasts must have starved and the poet have died. -London Standard.

A man who had visited Paris was telling of an extraordinary suicide he DIXIE ICE CREAM had heard of in that gay city. was a Frenchman, who was nothing if not original," said the teller of the tale, "and even when he grew despondent he planned his death is a most original fashion. He locked the door of his room in the Rue Nitot and, removing the weights of the window cord, fastened them to the window itself. He added to the weight of the window by attaching six fiatirons. On the sill be adjusted a large triangular bread kulfe, such as is used by chefs, and made ready a small balloon, capa-ble of lifting fifty pounds. The lugenious Frenchman then put his head out of the window after attaching the balloon to his neck and by releasing the clamp that held the window cut his head off completely with the impro vised guillotine. The decapitated body was discovered several days later, but it was not until the balloon and the head were found a week later in the field of a peasant, eighteen miles from Parls, that the method of suicide was really known."

Old Maps of Louisiana. An interesting exhibit in the Louislana State museum is a collection o old maps that show the state of Lou-isiana extending from Canada, which was then called New France, on the north to the gulf of Mexico on the south and from Virginia and Carolit on the east to the Pacific on the west These maps were printed in Italy and Holland and France and were evidently largely works of fancy and imagination on the part of the geographers, as they depict mountain ranges where none exists and lakes and rivers dis tributed around in places where they are not found today. One of the most charming of these maps represents the Mississippi river as making a graceful turn along what is now the roadbed of the Louisville and Nashville railroad and emptying into the gulf in Florida Along a strip of this country about where English Lookout and peaceful Bay St. Louis are located is a fearsome spot marked as the land of the man eaters.-New Orleans Picayune.

Some years ago a western man en-tered J. G. Brown's studio and seemed to gain satisfaction in finding its familiar features unchanged. He told the artist that in his boyhood he had worked in the streets of New York and, with others of his class, had served as a model for one of the pictures of street boys. He had gone west and had prospered and now had returned with a desire to become the owner of the group picture in which he and some of his boyish cronies appeared. He wanted it as a reminder of the struggles of his boyhood. He looked back on those days as being quite as happy as any he had ever known. The picture, says W. Howard Standish, discussing J. G. Brown, a painter of humble folk, had long ago been sold, and, although the would be purchaser offered to give his check for $25,000 for the work, the artist was unable to supply any clew to its whereabouts.-New Broadway Magazine.

Diagnosed the Case.

A successful oculist recently put in a day or two with his new shotgun in the marshes. He soon noticed that when using the left hand barrel he generally brought down the game, but when using the other barrel he invariably missed. He finally tacked a small target to a bush near the river's bank and fired at it several times with each barrel in order to bring the mat-ter to a test. The result confirmed his suspicions. One barrel was all right, or nearly so, and the other was all wrong. "Well," said the oculist to a friend who was with him, "as nearly as I can make out this gun has a severe case of strabismus, with strong symptoms of astigmatism!" - Modern So ciety.
